NEWS ALERT

FDA Poised to Release New Guidelines on Documentation for New Dietary Ingredients

In the next 10 days, FDA is poised to release substantial new guidelines on the documentation and marketing of new dietary ingredients (NDI). In the past year, FDA has escalated its enforcement of dietary supplement regulations, and many anticipate that the new guidelines will result in even more stringent oversight.

- Do you know whether you are in compliance with current guidelines?
- Do you need help determining whether or not you will be in compliance with new guidelines?

Gradient's in-depth knowledge of the NDI process and of the health effects literature, in particular, can help you interpret and respond to the new guidelines. We also have the expertise to evaluate the documentation you have compiled, identify and make recommendations regarding additional information needed, and prepare FDA forms. Please contact us if you would like to explore how we can help.
